VENEZUELAN PEOPLE HAVE NO DESIRE FOR HIM.

French Bankers Pay for Special Session Which Balances Over Legis. Law.

WILLIAMSTAD, Venezuela, Jan. 5.—The special session of the Venezuelan Congress has closed after perpetrating what is regarded here as the best joke since President Castro was notified that he might continue his vacation outside that country indefinitely.

The joke was on the French bankers who defrayed the expenses of the special session convened purposely to approve legislation which in the final days of the meeting was rejected.

Early last summer the government granted a concession for the establishment of a new bank with the exclusive right to issue paper money up to the extent of 20,000,000 bolivars. The bank was granted such other advantages as probably would have resulted in the closing of the old-established bank of Caracas, and the Bank of Venezuela.

This accomplished, the concessionaires took the first steamer for France, where they had no trouble in disposing of the concession to Paris financiers. But a concession in Venezuela does not become a law until it has been approved by Congress and unfortunately Congress had just adjourned and would not meet again in regular session for a year. In the meantime many things might happen. Castro might reappear and upset the whole plan. Accordingly, the French interests made their acceptance of the concession conditional upon the agreement of President Gomez to call Congress in extraordinary session. Gomez was agreeable but could not see why Venezuela should be put to the expense involved which, for salaries and traveling expenses, he estimated at $80,000.

The French bankers thought over and notified the Venezuelan executive that they would stand the expense. Gomez, however, having had some experience with Congress and perhaps in doubt as to how the expected legislation would turn out, cabled Paris that it would be necessary to have the cash in advance.

The money was received in Caracas and the congressmen assembled. They deliberated for a month and then instead of approving the bank concession, passed a new banking law, sounder than the old one and making the issuance of depreciated paper money impossible. Congress also decreed the coinage of 7,000,000 of bolivars of silver currency and 2,000,000 of gold. The members then left for their home, having much enjoyed their stay at the capital and more than ever impressed with French generosity.
